New Fleet Accounts to SPIN only

Information created, maintained, and controlled on Chrysler Canada's computer system is the sole property of Chrysler Canada Inc. This information is not to be disclosed, damaged, altered, or used in any other way for personal gain. Non-Chrysler personnel who are sponsored, and authorized to access Chrysler Canada's computer system agree to use only the information authorized for use by the person who signs below. Computer access by non-authorized personnel will be considered a breach of this agreement, and appropriate action will be taken.

ACF2, an access control software system, is installed at all Chrysler Canada Data centres. This software is used to control access to the system and to data files. Accordingly, it is important that you, and each person in your organization authorized to access Chrysler Canada's computer systems, understand and comply with federal laws pertaining to computer access, and with the following requirements:

- Every user must enter a personal user ID to access the system.
- Every user ID must have a password associated with it. The password will consist of 6-8 characters, known only by the user. Lead user is legally responsible for all activity connected to his/her user ID.
- You will be required, by the system security software, to change your password every 30 days.
- Access to data will automatically expire based on a predetermined length of this agreement.
- Any requests for extensions or additional access must be submitted by your Chrysler Canada sponsor.

I am employed by _____ and have been authorized and sponsored by Chrysler Canada Fleet Operations, Sales Department, to access the computer system and data sets transactions through SPIN, and I have read and agree with the above system and data access requirements.
